 hosted by University of Greenwich, London

Final GIFS Stakeholder Meeting

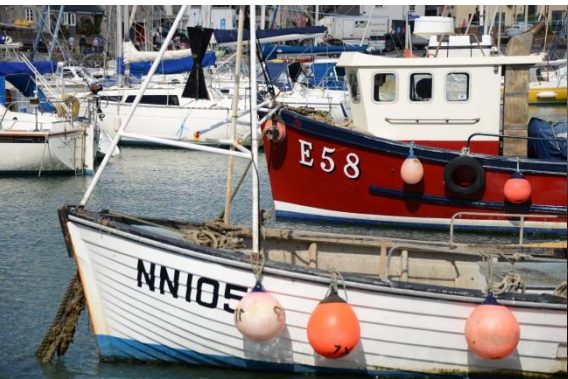

<http://www.gifsproject.eu>

The GIFS (Geography of Inshore Fisheries and Sustainability) partnership has the pleasure of inviting you to its final stakeholder event:

21st Century Catch: Understanding the socio-cultural and economic importance of inshore fisheries

This one day conference will present the approaches developed as part of the GIFS project to understand the importance of inshore fisheries in the Channel and Southern North Sea. A range of different methods will be discussed along with practical case examples including fisheries inspired place making. If you are interested in understanding how to value the importance of inshore fisheries for sustainable development then do not miss this event.

How to get to conference venue

Address: Devonport House, King William Walk, Greenwich, London, SE10 9JW

Tel: +44 (0)20 8269 5400

By air

From Heathrow, take the Piccadilly Line to Green Park, then change to the Jubilee Line, changing again at Canary Wharf onto the DLR and alighting at Cutty Sark.

From Gatwick, take the Thameslink rail service to London Bridge, change onto the London Underground to take the Jubilee Line to Canary Wharf and take the DLR line to Cutty Sark.

From London City Airport, take the shuttle bus to Canning Town then the DLR to Cutty Sark (change at Poplar). The DLR runs to London City Airport, change at Poplar and get onto a Lewisham/Greenwich Bound train - Journey time approx 23 minutes.

By rail
